Since the autumn of 2010 we have been working to promote the formation of a global network of SCI consumer organisations that will work to improve the quality of life of people with SCI all over the world. Although the network is still “under construction”, we have decided to take the opportunity to launch the network during and at the venue of the ISCoS meeting in London. In addition to our current partners and sponsors, we look forward to meeting representatives from SCI consumer organisations in Australia and the United States who will be attending the launch. We also look forward to meeting many other SCI consumers, SCI professionals and corporate representatives who are interested in finding out more about this initiative.

Naturally, the network will seek to collaborate with all stakeholders in the SCI community but the initiative for the network rests with SCI consumers themselves. Any issues it raises, any agenda it proposes, any actions it takes must be grounded in the knowledge and experience gained from living with spinal cord injury. This is the most significant contribution that we can make to the SCI community.

You can find out more about the Global SCI Consumer Network on our website www.globalsci.net. Better still, come and meet the people involved in the network, hear about what we have achieved so far and what we plan to do, listen to why our current partners are committed to the initiative, and take part in discussions that will shape the future of the Global SCI Consumer Network.
